Claimant's Statement (please be specific):

The water service line went through the bottom of my sewer line. This resulted in back flow to my basement. It has been happening for a while, so I called a plumber when I acquired the savings to repair. When the plumber told me that my fresh water was running through my household's feces and causing blockage I was disgusted. Having small children drinking that and having damage to sewer seemed negligent.

(Use reverse side if necessary)

Description of Work

we excavated at the front of the house where the sewer exits and up to the sidewalk removing the 6" sewer and trap placing all spoils on plywood. We dug a 15' trench in the road and removed all spoils we found a issue in the sewer line 10' from the main and up to the main. The bottom of the pipe was completely gone and the water service ran through the sewer. After consulting the water authority they removed the water line and is operational. We inspected the sewer tap and it appears to be in good condition. We sleeved 4 in pvc from trench to trench and connected onto the sewer just before it enters the main. A 4" pvc house trap and front sweep cleanout were installed in the lawn. After inspection was completed, We backfilled with the existing dirt in the lawn and a mound is left for settling. The street was filled with stone and tamped. Concrete was replaced over the road.
