Claimant's Statement (please be specific):

I was heading north on Transit Rd (Hwy 20) on 2/19/19 at about 2:20 PM. I came upon some work being done in the right hand lane at WellNow Urgent Care located at 4827 Transit Rd, Depew, NY 14043. There were cones blocking off the right hand lane where construction work was being done. I moved to the left hand lane and proceeded to slow down for the construction work that was going on. There were two cones in the far left lane (drivers side of my car), one was standing up. I proceeded to move to the right to avoid the first cone that was in the lane only to see a second cone lying down grass side towards me in my lane that I could not avoid because I didn't want to run into the cones on the right side of me where construction work was taking place. The lights on the construction truck(s) that were to the right of me had lights that were just blaring into the left hand lane, which they shouldn't have since they were doing work in the right lane. So, I am not sure what caused the cones to be in that lane since it was very hard to see with the lights blinding traffic. I do not know why two stray cones were even in that lane. I knew that the cone was either lying in front of my bumper and I was just slowly pushing it or that it could be under my bumper.

I proceeded to move past the construction cones that ^{Item 7} were on the right hand side of me until I could slowly pull over to a safe area on my right hand side. I put my car in park got out to look to see where the cone was. It was under my driver's side front bumper. I got down on my knees and tried to move it but it was stuck, so I left it. A worker then pulled up in his truck and I explained to him about the cones in the driving lane and that is why I hit the one. I told him that it was stuck under my bumper and asked him what he thought. He didn't say anything, he just got down on his knees and grabbed the cone and yanked it out from under the bumper. As he did this the bumper cracked and pieces of my bumper flew in front of my car. He then just stood up, took the cone walked over to his truck and threw it in back of his truck where he had a bunch of other cones. Then he proceeded to just open his doors like he was leaving and I said hey who is going to be responsible for this and where is the real guy. He then just told me if I wanted to wait, as his crew chief (Thomas Gabbey was on his way back to the site and he would let him know what happened, He told me I could just wait and he would be long. I said I would wait for his supervisor to see what he was going to do about this. The guy said ok, and just drove away in his truck over to the Well Now Urgent Care parking lot behind one. Thomas Gabbey did arrive on site and I told him what had happened and how his worker just pulled the cone out like he did and Thomas just ~~told me~~ ^{said} with it being so old that sometimes it can happen to a bumper because the cones are not flexible. (Point being that I never told his worker to just yank the cone out). Thomas Gabbey did come.

Claimant's Statement (please be specific):

over and looked at the damage to the bumper. He took pictures and gave me his business card and the name of their insurance agent (Tony Alessi), that I should contact to get this taken care of. I do not feel that it is my fault that my bumper has damage to it, since the worker just took it upon himself to yank the cone out from under my car, especially when I could have been just jacked up and pulled out without breaking it into pieces. I do have the piece of my bumper that I picked up after it flew a few hundred feet in front of my car. Also, what were the two stray cones doing in the left hand lane? I certainly feel that the Erie County Water Authority should be responsible for the damage. I went first thing the next morning to get an estimate from a place close to my home. I then got another estimate from a place right around the corner from where I work on Monday (2/11/19).
